

Welcome to the Wallington Public Schools Response to Intervention web page!

In any given school year, there are bound to be students who will struggle at different times in the year and for specific subjects. Response to Intervention (RTI) has been implemented in our schools as a multi-tiered approach to the identification and support of struggling students.

Tier 1 Supports and Interventions: These are classwide interventions and typically consist of classwide differentiated activities for all students. Typically this encompasses 80% of student intervention.

Tier 2 Supports and Interventions: These are more focused than classwide interventions. They target groups of students who require support beyond the Tier 1 interventions. Typically this encompasses 15% of student intervention.

Tier 3 Supports and Interventions: These are the most focused and intensive interventions for students. They target students who have not achieved success in Tiers 1 and 2. Typically this encompasses 5% of student intervention and also requires parental/home support.

The RTI process begins with differentiated essential classroom instruction and screening of all students. Struggling learners are provided with interventions at increasing levels of intervention. These interventions are documented in their RTI Intervention Plans. The RTI Team monitors student progress and Teacher implementation.

For the RTI process to be successful for students, the parents must be actively involved. Information regarding instruction and interventions, data and benchmark levels, academic goals, and progress is provided to the parents at each tier. For students who require Tier 3 interventions, it is often inclusive of a home component to the plan.
